Commissioner Pratt Presents Hawaii's Claim to Favor

Washington, May 5.—The Department of Justice today ratified the compromise affecting price to be paid for lands to be used by the United States for a quarantine station in Honolulu harbor proposed on the part of the Government by District Attorney Breckons, and by the owners of the lands in controversy. The details incident to carrying the compromise agreement into effect will be proceeded with by the department without delay. W. O. Smith, representing the Territory of Hawaii, who came here last week in the interest of the compromise, left today for Honolulu. F. M. Hatch, representing the land owners, will remain in the city a week or so longer.

The Senate Committee on Pacific Islands accorded a hearing this morning to Joseph G. Pratt, representing the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association of Honolulu, who presented the matter of claims growing out of losses by fire originating in the suppression of bubonic plague in the Hawaiian Islands during the latter part of the year 1899 and the fore part of 1900.

Mr. Pratt, in a clear and comprehensive manner, detailed a history of the epidemic, calling especial attention to the official reports and dispatches of D. A. Carmichael, Surgeon U. S. Marine Hospital Service at Honolulu, to the Surgeon General of the U. S. Marine Hospital Service at Washington, and also to the official reports of William Haywood, Consul General at Honolulu, to the Assistant Secretary of State, and to the minutes of the local Board of Health from December 31, 1899, to April 6, 1900. Mr. Pratt also directed the attention of the committee to correspondence between Sanford B. Dole and President McKinley, relating to the fire in Honolulu, and to a telegram from John Hay, Secretary of State, authorizing the appointment of a commission to make awards for losses of property destroyed. Mr. Pratt also reviewed the work of the Fire Claims Commission, and detailed the expenditures of the local government in providing and caring for the people whose homes and property were destroyed at the time of the destruction. He also reviewed the financial condition of the Territory, as follows:

Finances of Territory.

I beg to submit a letter under date of April 9, addressed to myself from H. C. Austin, Auditor of Hawaii, showing the condition of the finances of the Territory, which letter, together with Sec. 25 of the Audit Act referred to in said letter is hereto attached marked Exhibits 14 and 15.

It will be observed from this report that the appropriations to be provided for from the general funds in the treasury, should require to be made amounts to $6,669,897.31; that the estimated receipts on account of the general fund, including all sources of revenue for the biennial period ending June 30, 1903, amounts to $4,767,593.15, leaving a deficit of $1,902,304.16, from which may be deducted, however, the $1,000,000 which it is hoped will be paid by the United States, which is included in the amount appropriated, so that the net deficit at the end of the biennial period will be $901,904.16. Previous to June 14, 1900, the government of Hawaii was in receipt of the custom duties and postal revenues amounting to over $1,200,000 annually, and constituting a very considerable portion of the Territorial revenue used by the government in making necessary public improvements and paying the general expenses of government; that from and after said date, all revenues from customs duties were paid into the treasury of the United States.

Between the 14th of June, 1900 and the 31st of March, 1902, there has been collected from customs duties in the Territory of Hawaii and paid into the Territorial Treasury of the United States, the total sum of $2,292,234.33, an average amount of $106,625 monthly, as appears from a statement of the Secretary of the Treasury under date of May 3, 1902, hereto attached as Exhibit No. 14b, which revenues the local government was receiving at and during the time of the bubonic plague when the property now being claimed for was destroyed and the obligations to pay for the same were incurred.

The net customs receipts, after deducting expenses of collection amounts to $2,135,483.60. The Territory is not asking to be reimbursed for any of the money expended out of its local treasury, amounting to $807,008.60. Besides the loss to the Territory of the customs duties, amounting to $2,292,234.33, the postal receipts, amounting to about $50,000 per annum, together with the merchandise tax (recently declared by the Supreme Court to be unconstitutional) which yielded a revenue of about $86,000 per annum, are no longer a part of the local revenues; hence, it follows that the revenue of the Territory, since June 14, 1900, has been reduced by the amounts above stated, while the cost of carrying on the government has not been reduced. To offset this loss of revenue, in part, the late Legislature passed an act to provide a tax on incomes of two per cent per annum on all incomes over $1000 annually, from and after the 1st day of July, 1901, and from which was realized, according to the report of the Auditor, last year, $290,000. A copy of said act is attached hereto, marked Exhibit No. 15.

Taxes upon property, real and personal, are assessed on a basis of one per cent of the actual cash value of the property and in very many instances far in excess of present selling values, and it is impossible to increase the revenues by an increase in taxation under the present conditions without working a great hardship.

Under the terms of the Organic Act, Sec. 55, which section is hereto attached, marked Exhibit No. 16, the Territory has no authority to make loans for the purpose of raising money to satisfy the fire claim losses, and there exists no possible means of obtaining money for that purpose.

Honolulu, by reason of its geographical location, affords a regular and necessary stopping place for many vessels carrying passengers and merchandise between the United States, the cities of China, Japan, Australia and the Philippines, and at the time of the breaking out of the plague there a large number of United States transports engaged in the carrying of troops to and from the Philippines that were required to stop for needed repairs, also to take on passengers freight and fuel, so that the action taken by the local authorities to prevent the spreading of the disease to such vessels and to the cities of the mainland, in the suppression and eradication of the bubonic plague, became a matter of national concern, as well as of local necessity.

Hence, for the consideration stated, and for the reason that it has been impossible for the Fire Claims Commission to complete its work at an earlier day, it is earnestly hoped that the Congress of the United States will grant the relief prayed for.

Mr. Pratt's presentation was supplemented by a brief address by F. M. Hatch, made at the invitation of Senator Foraker, chairman of the committee, Senators Depew and Cockerell, of the committee, manifested intense interest, and asked questions which were satisfactorily answered during the proceedings. It is understood that the committee will if practicable, propose an amendment to the Sundry Civil bill providing an appropriation to pay the losses growing out of the suppression of the plague. This is considered the most expedient and expeditious method of securing legislative action at this period of the session. Among the Hawaiian citizens present at the hearing, in addition to those who participated, were Messrs. W. O. Smith, Caylees, Gehr, McCaslin, Tuttle, Delegate Wilcox and his secretary. Delegate Wilcox said to a Bulletin reporter that he endorsed Mr. Pratt's statements, and would do all in his power to secure legislation along the lines suggested.

Following the hearing on the fire claims matter, Messrs. Tuttle and McCroslin were heard in reference to the controversy concerning the use of waters from the Bishop estate.
